

... all about inclusivity and being able to connect and understand others.

- Aarleah Upton-Tangaroa
BA in Sports Coaching
Training to be a Health and PE Teacher

... definitely helping you work in teams, helping you work towards a common goal and directing teaches a lot about leadership.

- Campbell Wright
BA in Psychology and Theatre
Communications - NZ Police

... when I connect with students who have done Drama I can see they are really good at Project management, accountability, understanding the way things can be applied in the world beyond just texts on a page.

- Dr. Erin Harrington
Senior Lecturer - University of Canterbury

The Drama journey is...

... not soft skills, they're life skills.

- Emma Bishop
President Drama NZ
Director StageAntics

... incredibly useful because you have to stand in front of people and prepare, having to think on your feet and being able to imagine yourself in the shoes of others.

- Professor Ursula Cheer
Dean of Law University of Canterbury

... a space to feel safe and to be able to explore ourselves and not be judged for it.

Drama class provides that.

- Marwin Silerio
Personal Trainer and Actor
Bachelors in Performing Arts
Majoring in Screen & Theatre Acting

... what you need to be successful are the skills of creativity and being able to draw from one kind of knowledge and put it in with something else and make something new.

- Professor Peter o'Connor
Director of Centre for Arts and Social Transformation at the University of Auckland

